

MAMADOU KHOUMA

SENEGAL

Current Position: Regional Project Coordinator, UNDP GEF funded Project
“Capacity Building for Improvement of the Quality of Greenhouse gases inventories in West and Central Africa”

Agronomist (PhD) and soil scientist with a sound professional experience in planning, organization, execution and management of agricultural research and development projects. Dr. Khouma has 30 years of experience in the field of research and development projects with a good knowledge of rural development issues, a proven record of activities devoted to development programs related natural resource management and climatic change and greenhouse gases inventories. Sound experience and leadership in administration, management and coordination of agricultural projects and technology transfer. Good command of computer science and geographical information systems (Arc/Info, Idrisi, Ilwis, Arcview).

Education:

University: State Faculty of Agricultural Science, Gembloux (Belgium).

Degree of soil scientist 1978, with credit "grande distinction".

Degree of “agregé de l'enseignement secondaire supérieur” (agregé of higher education) 1978, with credit "distinction".

PhD (Agricultural Science): 1995, with credit “Grande distinction”

Committee/Association Membership:

Dr. Khouma holds membership in several associations/committees including the Association of graduate engineers of the Agronomic Faculty of Gembloux, The Senegalese Association of Soil Science (committee chairman), the Senegalese Association of Agricultural Engineers, The West and Central African Soil Science (former vice chair), the African Soil Science Association, etc.